Commissaries Dave "I have long advocated the ability to swim as a requisite of graduation from colleges," stated a well known eastern expert recently in commenting on Phil Della Spina's 1922 Interscholastic Educational Contest. P. Earl Anthony, Oxford graduate and a representative college man of the characteristic British type, said "With us there is general participation in games. We do not watch a few select men perform and, although we have our Oxford teams and Cambridge teams, everyone takes part in foot ball, cricket, hockey, golf and tennis. If America makes physical fitness a requirement qualification for graduation, we will insure the all-around fitness of students for success."

taxes, employment, development of industry, etc. He expressed the hope that the policy of the Union Pacific was one of discrimination, then surely from 1902 to 1912 when the Union Pacific held the Southern Pacific and then operated two parallel lines it had ample opportunity to discriminate. On the contrary, Union Pacific.

Harrison admitted that competition was desirable, that in accordance with three different acts on groupings the supreme court had served the Central Pacific and Southern Pacific because that grouping destroyed competition.

For the negative, Miss Edith Johnson opened the debate. She had clear arguments and pleasant delivery. Her arguments were that Union Pacific control would retard the development of Utah industries, for whatever there is a Union Pacific monopoly there is a closed gateway policy.

Douglas Cress, second speaker for the negative, spent all his time arguing that real competition comes only when there is a western line competing with an eastern line as grouping with the Southern Pacific would provide. He read a statement of President Cress of the Columbia Steel corporation from the Salt Lake Tribune of September 1, 1922, in which he suggested that the big incentive for the steel company to incorporate in Utah was competing rates east and west.

C. C. Stratford, third speaker for the negative, argued that Union Pacific control would remove the key to rate lowering, namely a western outlet. The closing of gateways by a combination of small rates has been the policy of the Union Pacific, claimed Mr. Stratford, and if the Ogden gateway be closed there will be no eastern incentive to become incentive for building of the Moffett road through the Uintas from Provo to Denver.

Real argument and fact was called for in the rebuttal and both sides related arguments and substantiated remarks. Mr. Harrison in the last rebuttal, carefully met all their standing contentions and, moreover, pointed out that the question of national discrimination had been unquestioned.

Special musical numbers were given by the B. Y. U. orchestra, the Johnson sisters, and a string trio, composed of Alene Phillips, Professor E. F. West and Florence Newell.

U. A. C. Defeat "Y"

According to Dean Swenson who made the debate in Logan the "Y" debaters there created themselves as real debaters.

The debate was lost by the "Y" because of a superior argument upon which the A. C. U. placed so much stress. Their argument was "that if the Union Pacific was in consolidation with the Central Pacific Salt Lake City would have water competition."

Mr. West and his colleagues attempted to refute this statement in their rebuttal.

The judges of the Logan contest were Judge W. M. McClure, Judge G. A. Iversen, Marshall Hall, Mr. Alms Stone was chairman.

Robert Nelson a former A. C. student was a "Y" visitor Friday.
